Three discoveries challenged this foundation of magnetism, though. First, in 1819, Hans Christian Årsted discovered that an electric current generates a magnetic field encircling it. Then in 1820, Andr e-Marie Amp re showed that parallel wires with currents attract one another if the currents are in the same direction and repel if they are in opposite directions.

Thermoelectric materials hold the promise of converting waste heat into electricity. The challenge is to develop high-efficiency materials that are not too expensive. Kim et al. suggest a pathway for developing inexpensive thermoelectrics. They show a dramatic improvement of efficiency in bismuth telluride samples by quickly squeezing out excess liquid during compaction.
